Farewell To Two Who Really Knew Their Business

The past 40 years have seen AYHS students come and go by the hundreds, teachers and workers by the dozens. Anyone returning to our school during the 1990-91 school year alone would have seen a great many changes that have taken place. But any alumnus from the distant past would have been pleasantly surprised to recognize two familiar and friendly faces, still smiling even after so many long years of determined dedication to keep Armstrong High the special place that it is.

The faces would have been those of staunch Armstrong Trojan supporters and "Office Gennii Extraordinaire" Betty Kinney and Genevieve Roberts, two mainstays of the school throughout five administrations. Unfortunately for ATHS, both links to the past were broken at the end of the year because of retirement, for Betty, after 39 years and for Genny, after 37 years.

When Betty Kinney joined Armstrong High as Head Secretary in 1952, it was only five years after her own graduation from Potomac High. In that long time, she witnessed a tremendous growth in the successful co-operation and closeness of those two once-rival schools. Her advice to all high schoolers remained simple: "Stay in school (but STUDY!)—it's the best time of your life!" (And as students and staff alike learned—Betty's word goes!) Her reputation among the hundreds who have known her has also remained simple: Betty has more details of school life locked in her head than what could possibly fill the school's computers! Always busy, not just with school duties but also with volunteer church and hospital work, with a paintbrush as well as a typewriter. Her formidable control over announcements, state forms, ever-advancing office machines, students and staff alike leaves a major question: Can ATHS survive without Betty?

Of course the same can be asked of the ever-dutiful, supremely-efficient Genevieve Roberts, with her unparalleled business practice acumen. Mrs. Roberts joined the Armstrong faculty in 1954 after graduating from Bismarck High and Illinois State University. Her high expectations as teacher of typing (now "keyboarding", shorthand, and accounting have been the key to business and office success of countless students. "Hold fast to your dreams," she advised, "because no dream is impossible." As one known for such a good attitude and demanding nothing less than excellence from herself and her classes, she represented the quintessence of quality teaching. All duties under her years of authority whether as simple as weekly mimeographing of calendars or as complex as Class, National Honor Society or Yearbook sponsorship, were carried out with close attention to precise detail. Indeed, such perfection also showed itself in her favorite forms of relaxation, creative sewing and needlepoint. Such exacting care led Mrs. Roberts to belong to that special group of rare and great teachers who will long be appreciated and silently thanked by those hundreds of budding proteges she benefited over the decades. After all, despite any groaning or wailing drowned out by the roaring of typewriters or the clicking of calculators, every student always knew that praise or a good grade from Mrs. Roberts was not just a hollow encouragement or "gift"—it always represented a real achievement of which to be proud.

It is then an accurate assessment for both Betty and Genny that these two dedicated professionals be given an A plus for their decades of good service to the school and their caring, responsible attitudes to all. Each new school year has its additions of new faces and absences of the old, and who knows when other fine teachers may find it time to move on? But the two reliable faces, skills and loyalty of these two wonder workers in particular, seen for so long here, will sorely be missed.

Flag Custodians

The senior class each year has the responsibility of being flag custodians. Being a flag custodian means putting up and taking down both the American and Illinois flags, folding the flags, watching the continually changing weather, and remembering those darn flags before Coach Bob has a chance to say, "You must have gotten here pretty early this morning. The flags were already up at 6:30 a.m. when I got here." Being a flag custodian isn't all that bad. It gives seniors an excuse to be just a few minutes late or to leave just a few minutes early. It is a responsibility taken on heartily, but it's also one gladly passed on to next year's seniors!

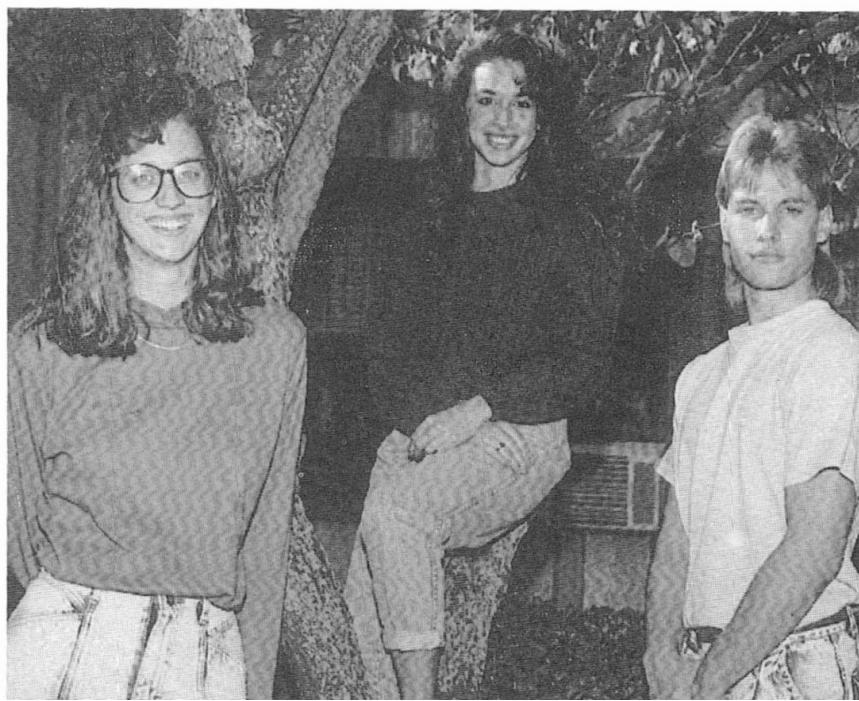

Sara Vinson, Bob Curtis, Jeff Zindars, Dusty Swinford, Daved Wilken, Sean Huls, Jonathan Blackford, and Beth Knight are ready to take over their Civics class duty.

Through the Years . . .

Just starting out in kindergarten at Penfield Grade School.

An excited group of 5th graders on Camera Day at Armstrong-Ellis Grade School.

Everybody smile! A memorable stop at McDonald's on the way home from the 7th and 8th grade Penfield class trip.

Surviving the underclassmen years meant taking a lot of abuse while living for the day when we would get to return the favor, eating only half our lunch so the seniors wouldn't get mad at us for not selling candy soon enough, and praying for the time to fly by so we could get our licenses and be allowed to date. When we finally became part of the upperclassmen, we weren't happy yet because dreams of being a senior and of graduation came into focus. But being an upperclassmen, especially a senior, has its advantages. College days and early dismissal at the end of the year are definitely perks to finally reaching the top.

There are fun times to be had during any year of high school such as dances, sports events, and the play. This senior year has certainly had its share of good times—both the girls' and boys' fabulous basketball seasons, the first year of a successful co-op sports program, and the end of a short but troubling war. With our senior prom and finally graduation marking the end of our time at AHS, the future holds in store for us all that we can dream and achieve. So for the memories of our years apart before high school, we now add the memories of high school together, and we look forward to the memories of tomorrow, wherever they may take us!

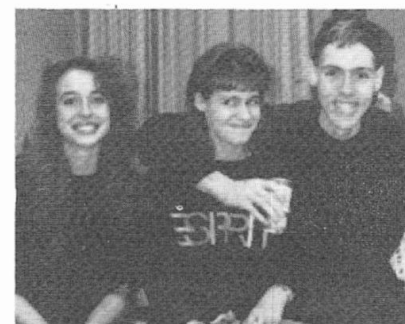

As we, the class of 1991, prepare to leave the halls of Armstrong High School, memories of these past four years together continually cross our minds. It is so hard to believe these years are almost gone, and next year we will face college, work, and whatever else we choose to take on. As the seniors of '91, we all came from different childhoods and grade schools. That first day of high school meant seeing people you didn't know, not only the upperclassmen, but some of your own classmates! While trying to figure out our locker combinations and class schedules, we all got our first real introduction to fellow freshmen from Armstrong, Penfield, and Gifford. Through grade school stories about teachers, sports, and classroom antics, we learned a lot more about each other. It wasn't long before everyone was friends, and it soon became hard to remember a time when we didn't know each other.

From the fall of 1987, this class of twenty-three has gone through health, driver's ed, P.E., and all those other required courses. But it hasn't been all work these four years, even in the classroom. We've also won the Homecoming Spirit Jug for the past three years, competed earnestly in the class competitions (though never winning), and gone on those rare but fun field trips!

Homecoming 1990

The 1990 Homecoming Dance, which was held on December 15, was organized by the Student Council. They selected the colors green, black, and silver to decorate the dance floor. The Homecoming king and Queen were Jeff Zindars and Jennifer Guest. The senior court included Vicki Jarboe, Scott Spear, Nicole Hubner, David Wilken, Carrie Rademacher, and Jonathan Blackford. Junior attendants were Shanna Burleson and Bill Learned. Sophomore attendants were Melissa Fox and John Carpenter, and the freshman attendants were Rachel Stanley and Gerald Guest. The emcees for the evening were Shelly Roberts and Val Early. The dazzling decorations, delectable homemade cookies, and spectacular entertainment made the 1990 Homecoming Dance simply "More Than Words Can Say!"

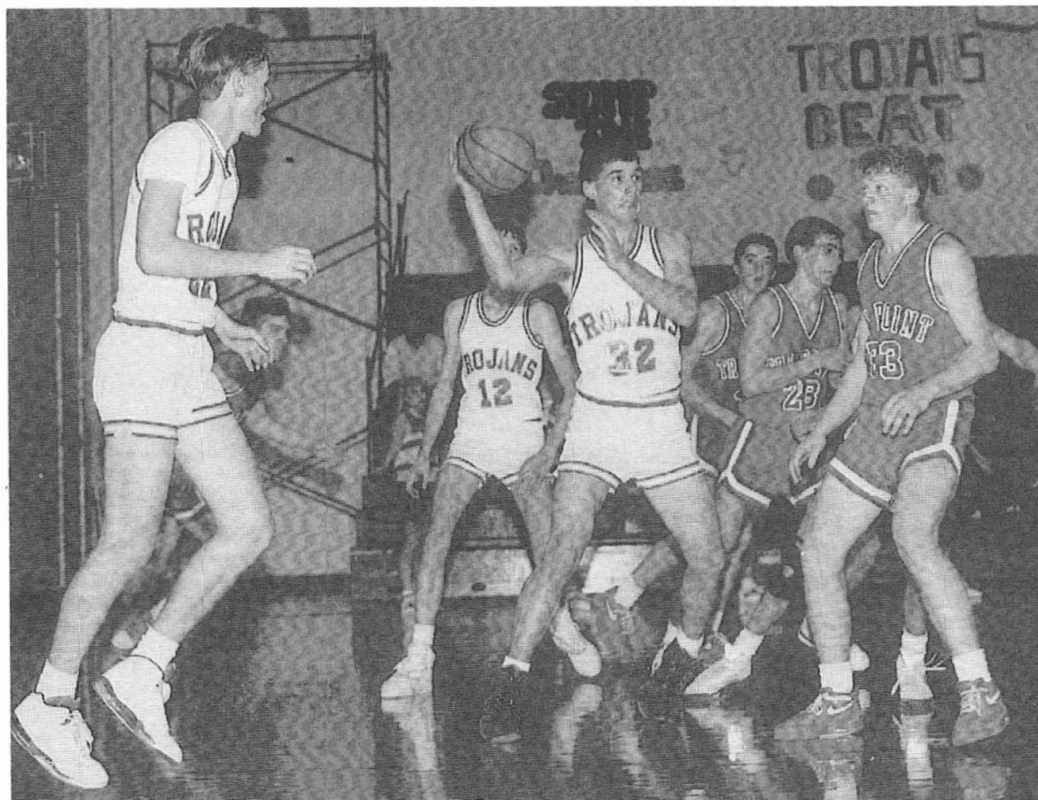

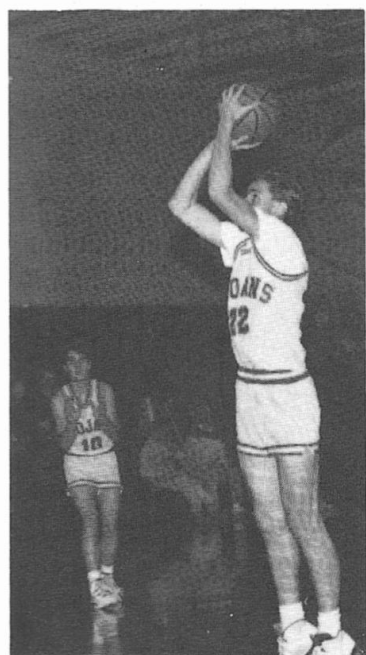

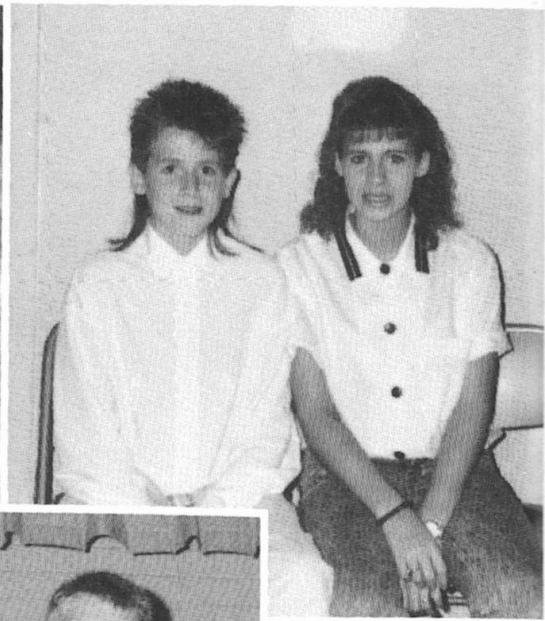

The Homecoming Victory

The students participated in many activities throughout the week to prepare for the Homecoming game. Students dressed up during the week to gain points in the class competition for the spirit jug. The Student Council chose these wacky ideas to dress up as: Come As You Are, Day of Mourning, Clash, Purple and Gold, and Class Choice day. The seniors covered themselves in tin foil, juniors dressed as the opposite sex, sophomores wore togas, and the freshmen dressed 50's style. Several skits were performed and cheerleaders were auctioned off for stunt day. The cheerleaders showed their support and appreciation by throwing a pizza party for the basketball team after practice. The pep assembly and bonfire were held Friday before the game. All the planning and support of the fans paid off as the Trojans defeated the Tri-Point Chargers 79-47.

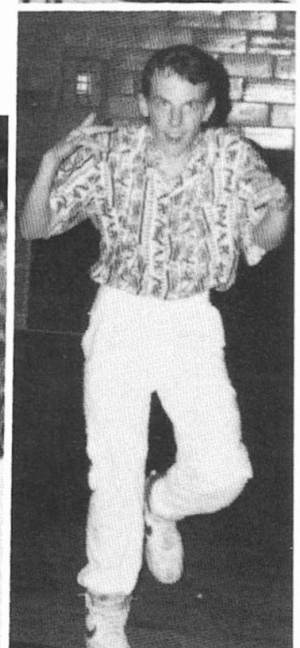

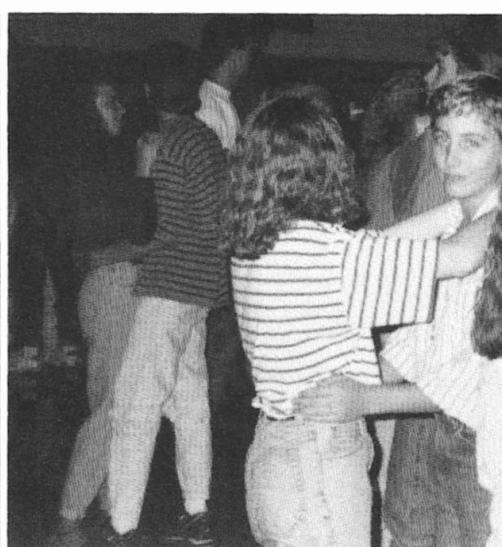

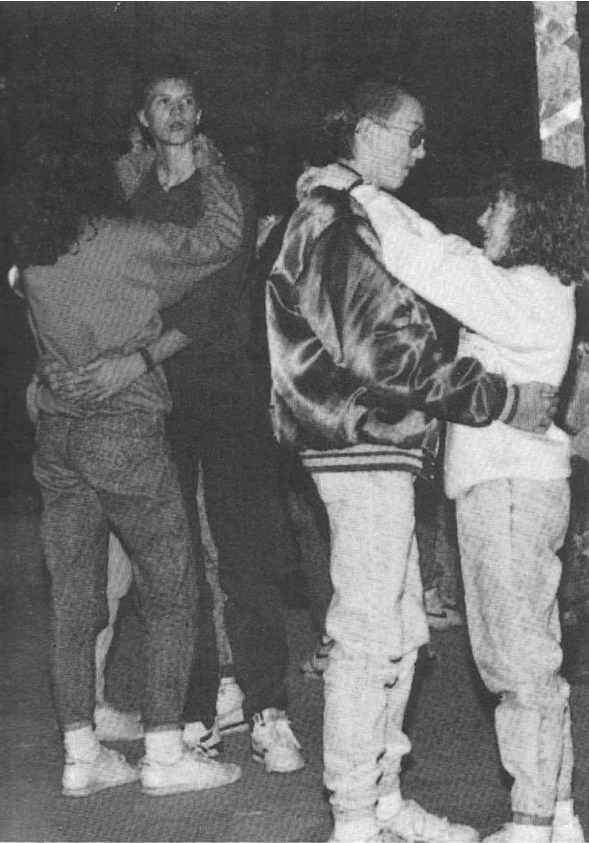

riday, September 20, 1990, was the date set for the Freshman Dance to welcome them into Armstrong high. The festivity was sponsored by the Senior Class. David Wilken was the D.J. for the evening's entertainment. All students attending had a great time.

Student Council sponsored a spring dance in April. This was a "co-op" dance—both Potomac and Armstrong students could attend. The money raised was used to purchase plaques for the basketball players and banners for Armstrong and Potomac schools in celebration of our "sweet" season.

said. "They would be thinking, 'That's an Armstrong player who scored. That's a Potomac player who scored.' It kind of got to us."

And Kathie Britt, mother of player Josh Britt and one of the cheerleaders, wasn't so sure this co-op was going to work.

"I had my doubts," she said. "We've always been (big) rivals."

But as the season progressed the rival communities came together and have helped the team reach Sectionals for the first time. The story of either school began at the beginning of the year. Last night's 1,133 of Armstrong-Potomac's of tickets had been sold. Some so got together and rented a bus for the team to take to the bird Arena tonight.

Hornbeck led the Armstrong boys regional championship game where the Trojans lost to Hoopeston-East Lynn. This year, the Trojans had to beat the Cornjacks on Wednesday night, to make Armstrong has been in the sectional final three times, winning all three, most recently in 1966. Potomac lost in its sectional final.

"I think they'll play zone defense and probably try to slow us down and try to slow down the game on us," Hornbeck said.

Armstrong-Potomac (19 years) meanwhile, found itself at the short end of the seeding in entering the regional. The Trojans tied Oakwood for the top spot, but because of a two-game tie during the regular season, Armstrong-Potomac fell to fourth. That meant a meeting with Hoopeston-East Lynn in the semifinals.

"After the seedings, I thought we were in trouble," Armstrong-Potomac coach Hank Hornbeck said.

But the Trojans won the regional games by an average of 20 points, with their last game coming against Hoopeston (62-60).

Jonathon Blackford played the role of a defensive guard, Hornbeck said. "When you have inches and give that type of performance."

Blackford had 12 points and 10 rebounds.

continually out-rebound their opponents and it was no different on the road as Armstrong-Potomac pulled away from Mahomet-Seymour for the sectional championship.

"I thought Jonathon Blackford and Sean Huls did a whale of a job on the boards and defensive end in the first half," Hornbeck said after the game.

Hornbeck also points to the improvement of the Trojans.

"Learned has really come along in recent weeks," Hornbeck said. "We've been able to move him outside so we can keep (5-8 junior) Shaughnessy Rice and (6-1 senior) Josh Britt in the wings where they are capable of hitting threes at any time. Learned also can move in and out of the outside."

Four of our top seven players are juniors so we've kept them awhile to come around. Michael Schluter, for instance, has improved tremendously. He's accepted his role in the defense and getting garbage. He's a good outside shooter, but we can't rely on him in that capacity. We'll probably see him here next year.

"We've also been without (senior) Jonathon since our 14th game with a knee. He's had two operations, but he's been cheering us on." Sean Huls leads the Trojans in scoring with 17. Britt is close behind with a 17. Britt also ranks second to senior

A typical 25 points for the point guard. Like usual, dodging two and three defenders just to make a pass and made reverse layups, shots from behind the free-throw line and two 3 pointers.

And he was a constant frustration for Mahomet-Seymour.

"It was typical for Shaughnessy," said Trojan coach Hank Hornbeck. "He averages around 20. Not as many assists tonight, but he's picked up on defense."

Rice is not only the team's leading scorer at 20.8 points a game, but the junior is considered by many coaches as the area's best point guard.

"Everyone else was scoring," Rice said. "I was kind of relieved."

Rice spent most of the quarter passing to his teammates inside. Josh Britt had seven of his 19 points in the quarter, and Michael Schluter had six of his 12.

"They were cheating on (Rice) so

"We couldn't do much wrong in the first half," Hornbeck said.

"The first quarter was a mission," Wittman said.

"Armstrong just throw it in, they know what to do with it," Britt said. "If they can't shoot it, they just pop it back out to us."

"We set picks, to get (Sean) Huls and (Shaughnessy) Rice the clear shot," said Trojan forward Josh Britt. "And we were once in the game."

Seymour tried to slow down the Trojans' run-and-gun offense. But Armstrong-Potomac controlled the pace, slowing it down and using a delay game in the fourth quarter.

"If we see a fast break, we let it go," Blackford said. "We don't like to play a slowdown game."

"They had to do a lot of things right," Bis-Henn coach Ma Dicken said. "If they outrebound us that badly, they deserve to win."

Sean Huls, who had 11 points and the Trojans with 15 rebounds, said everybody was helping out.

Five-foot-8 point guard Shaughnessy Rice had eight rebounds to go with his 25 points and 6-1 Josh Britt, who started forward, had nine rebounds and 15 points.

"That's what we didn't want them to do," Dicken said. "We didn't want Rice and Britt to have big games and they did."

The Trojans pulled closer at the end of the third quarter, but did not go ahead until Britt learned hit two free throws at 3:09 to go for a 48-46 edge.

"It was a game of steal," said Trojan coach Hank Hornbeck. "We didn't play good defense. We let them do what they wanted to do."

"The key to our run was getting the ball inside. The second half we were getting the ball inside to (Sean) Huls and (Jonathon) Blackford ... opening up shots for (Shaughnessy) Rice to take."

Rice led the Trojans with 17 points. Huls finished with 11 points and Blackford added 10.

Hoop-EL's Allen Warner tied the game up again, 60-60, with 30 seconds left. But Learned got the

Track

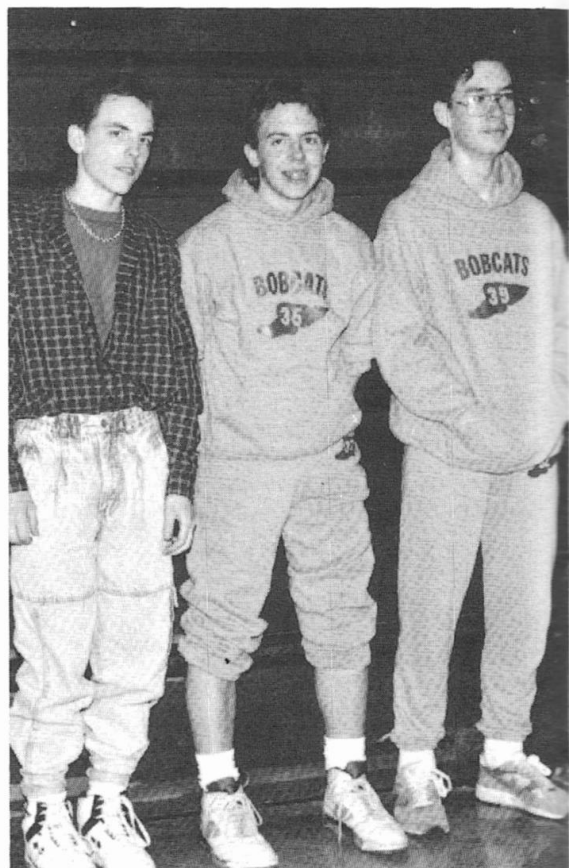

Amanda Ellis

Last year Armstrong and Potomac combined their baseball teams and this year we once again combined athletic efforts for co-op basketball. There aren't a lot of people that didn't hear all about the success of the boy's basketball team, however, the same was not true for track. Another difference was that we went all the way to Rossville for our practices and had to be back in time to pick up the baseball players in Potomac. We did, however, do what we could with the practices we had. Our successes came by personal accomplishments and doing what we could for the team. Personal accomplishments came by trying your best in your events. They could be a personal record for time or distance or even by fulfilling a goal by receiving a varsity letter or a medallion. The track teams, both boys and girls, captured the Varsity Eastern Okaw Conference titles. At county, the girls placed third and the boys placed fourth. The teams also competed well at their sectionals, although no one from Armstrong advanced on to state. However, everyone ended the season strong when all five members of the team from Armstrong earned a varsity letter.

The Year in Review

Welcome to the 1991 Resume. Throughout the school year, we have all experienced some very memorable moments. From our "dream" season that took us all the way to the Sweet 16 to our hot, but exciting class competition to the success of Project Holiday, the students and faculty of Armstrong High School have had a very busy year.

Capturing the excitement, fun, and sometimes even the sadness with words and photographs makes the job of yearbook co-editors very challenging. Choosing just the right shot or printing just the right comment can sometimes be difficult, but is also a task gladly taken on (most of the time). With so many pictures to choose from or sometimes not enough to fill a page, drawing up and finalizing a page can have its problems.

With yearbook meetings, the responsibility of collecting ads, and the seminar attended at the U of I in the fall, yearbook work began early in the school year. Assigning pages, meeting deadlines, and being creative were continually important in the completion of this Resume. We hope that you enjoy and remember the times, both good and bad, we've tried to capture within this book. For the freshmen, the first of your four years in high school is finally over; while the sophomores have made it to the elite position of upperclassmen (you thought it would never happen—but remember, you're still the lower of the upper!) To the juniors—you're seniors now and it's been a long time coming, while the seniors have moved on to bigger and better, (I think?!?)

For every teacher and student, no matter what age or grade, the 1990-91 school year held its share of memorable and forgettable (though very few) times. We hope this collection highlights the best of the year for each of you.

Eva Irvin and Beth Knight
Co-editors

I can't believe I actually used to dress like that!

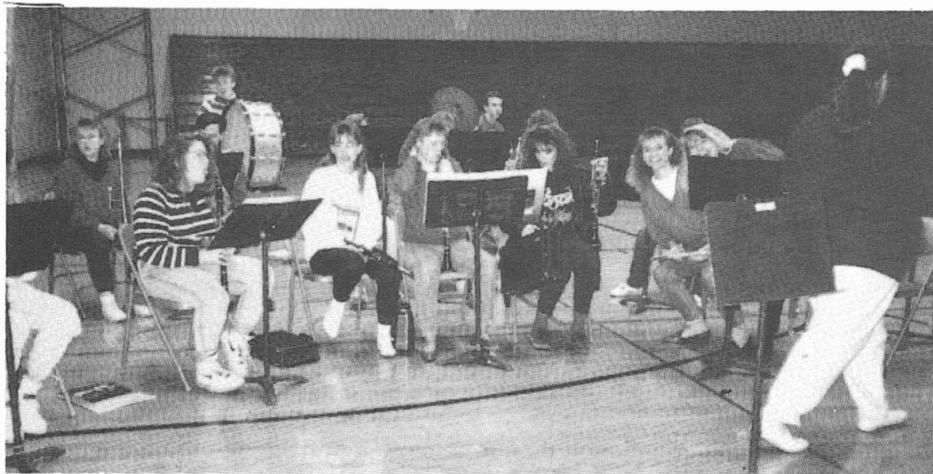

But how are we going to get all these pictures on this page and have it done by the deadline?

Franish Club

Franish Club officers for the 1990-91 school year were Miss Street, advisor; Beth Knight, secretary; Nicole Buck, treasurer; Elissa Franko, president; and Nicole Hubner, vice president.

For Halloween, the Franish Club made two pinatas, one for each lunch period, filled with candy. In each lunch period, tickets were sold to take swings at the pinatas. The person making the swing to spill out the contents of the pinata was the winner of the candy.

STAND

Officers overseeing the STAND activities throughout the year were Mrs. Kavanaugh, adviser; Beth Knight, president; Lora Schluter, secretary; and Jonathan Blackford, sergeant of arms.

The Family Living class prepares care packages to be sent to local military with items donated by the community.

This year, Armstrong High School decided to do its part to help out with Operation Desert Shield (servicemen stationed in Saudi Arabia).

With Mrs. Miller's English I writing letters and FHA's contemplation of a cookie bake for those serving in O.D.S., Mrs. Miller and Mrs.

Scharlach organized Project Holidays. As a school project, everyone became involved.

Computer classes distributed letters to area families asking for both donations for the packages and addresses of local military serving in Operation Desert Shield, and the agriculture classes decorated the school with various yellow ribbons. yellow ribbons were tied on both the teachers' and the students' car antennas, and Mrs. Scharlach's Family

Living and Home Ec classes made cookies and helped assemble care packages to be sent to the servicemen for Christmas. Our Project Holidays gained media attention including articles in several area newspapers and coverage by the Channel 15 News. Our efforts did not go unappreciated. Both the students and the high school received letters of gratitude from the local military serving in Saudi Arabia. We were glad that Armstrong High School could do its part to lift the morales and confidences of our country's servicemen.

Beloved Staff

Teachers do more than teach, grade papers, and make lesson plans. All the teachers were asked what they do in their spare time and what their hobbies were, and the common reply was, "What spare time?" (Like they have so much to do!) Finally they gave the following comments about their extracurricular activities which you probably didn't even know about. Mr. Bezely's response was, "sports, read, sports, cook, and sports!" Mrs. Miller is active in community theater and teaches Speech 101 at DACC. Mr. Harlan collects antiques, rides a motorcycle, and works on antique cars. Mrs. Knight replies, "I read, and I sleep." Miss Troxel enjoys crafts, needlepoint and reading. Mrs. Roberts has much to do in her spare time. She enjoys her grandchildren and does needlepoint and cross-stitch. She also enjoys outdoor activities such as gardening, boating and snowmobiling. Reading, cooking, knitting, and traveling to Europe take up much of Ms. Bohlen's time. Mr. Hornbeck golfs, plays with his kids, and really enjoys mowing his lawn!! Miss Street loves to listen to records and to read. Miss Schlarlach is one busy lady; she considers herself a "domestic engineer" who enjoys sewing clothes, making crafts, baking, and bicycling. In Mr. Stagen's spare time he goes to stock car races and go-cart races, and he also works in his garden. Miss Detmers is a volunteer for muscular dystrophy. She crochets, does embroidery, and surprisingly enough she plays the piano. Mrs. Kavanaugh's baby, along with reading and shopping, occupy much of her time. Camping, hunting, and fishing are some of Mr. Cox's hobbies. Now that we know how much teachers do, we can all appreciate them taking extra time for us students.
